The Tudor Family

How did the Tudor family come to power?

The Tudor family were the kings and queens of England from 1485 until 1603. The Tudors came to the throne after the Battle of Bosworth which was the last battle of the Wars of the Roses. The House of York and the House of Lancaster had fought about who should rule the country. The House of York had a white rose as their symbol and the House of Lancaster had a red rose as their symbol. When Henry Tudor (a Lancastrian) won the battle and became King Henry VII, he combined the roses to form the Tudor Rose.

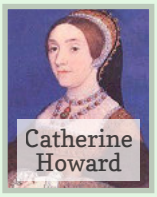
King Henry VII and his family

Henry Tudor was born in 1457. He married Elizabeth of York in 1483, two years before he became king.

Elizabeth was born in 1466 and was nine years younger than Henry. Henry Tudor became King Henry VII on 22nd August 1485. Henry VII and Elizabeth of York had four children who survived beyond infancy. Their first child was a son named Arthur Tudor. He was born in 1486. He married Catherine of Aragon in 1501 but died in 1502 at the age of fifteen. Henry VII's first daughter was named Margaret Tudor. She was born in 1489 and died in 1541. The most famous of their four children, who later became King Henry VIII, was born in 1491. He became king in 1509 and ruled until his death in 1547. Henry had a younger sister called Mary Tudor (1496-1533).

Henry VIII and his six wives

When Arthur Tudor died, his wife was betrothed to Henry. Catherine of Aragon (1485-1536) married Henry in 1509, just a few months after he became King Henry VIII. Catherine and Henry had a daughter called Mary who later became Queen Mary I. However, they divorced after more than twenty years of marriage as Catherine had not given Henry the son he wanted. Henry then married Anne Boleyn who was born around 1501 and they had a daughter together who later became Queen Elizabeth I. Anne Boleyn was beheaded in 1536. After Anne Boleyn's death, Henry married Jane Seymour (1508-1537) and they had a son, Edward, who was born in 1537. However, Jane never recovered from the birth and she died twelve days after Edward was born. Henry next married Anne of Cleves (1515-1557) who was from Germany, but Henry disliked her instantly and they divorced after only a few months of marriage. Catherine Howard was next. She was Anne Boleyn's younger cousin and was born in 1520. She followed the same fate as her aunt and was beheaded in 1542. Henry VIII's sixth and final wife was Catherine Parr (born in 1512). She stayed married to Henry until his death in 1547 and then died a year later.



Henry's children

Henry VIII had three surviving children with his six wives. His only son was Edward. He was nine years old when his father died and he became King Edward VI, but he died just six years later in 1553. Henry VIII's first daughter, Mary, was born in 1516 and later became Queen Mary I, also known as 'Bloody Mary' because of all the Protestants she put to death. She died from illness in 1558. Henry's second daughter, Elizabeth (1533-1603) became queen in 1559 and ruled for forty-four years. Queen Elizabeth never married and had no children so when she died there were no more Tudors to rule England so the Stuart family came to power.
